Press Release – For Immediate Release

Archipelago Learning to be Acquired by PLATO Learning

Dallas, TX – March 5, 2012 – Archipelago Learning (NASDAQ: ARCL), a leading software-as-a-service (SaaS) provider of education products, announced today that it has entered into a definitive agreement under which PLATO Learning, a portfolio company of Thoma Bravo, LLC, will acquire Archipelago Learning for $11.10 per share in cash, representing an equity value of approximately $291 million. The transaction represents a premium of 23 percent to the closing price of $9.04 on March 2, 2012, and a premium of 17 percent to the company’s weighted average trading price for the last twelve months.

Tim McEwen, chairman, chief executive officer and president of Archipelago Learning said, “This transaction is an excellent outcome for each of our constituents: the millions of students who use our products on a daily basis; the thousands of teachers who leverage our products to improve student performance and learning outcomes; and our shareholders, for whom this represents an attractive premium. PLATO Learning is an excellent partner for Archipelago Learning, with a strong presence in online core curriculum that is highly complementary to our online supplemental curriculum. With our combined financial strength and additional support from Thoma Bravo, we have the means to support our continued innovation and expansion to more comprehensively meet the needs of our customers.”

“Archipelago Learning is a true innovator in online, supplemental instruction,” said Vin Riera, PLATO Learning’s chief executive officer. “This acquisition allows us to cover the entire spectrum of learning needs from pre-K through postsecondary, as well as reach a broader group of students and educators with a product portfolio that sets a rigorous standard in online education.”

“Thoma Bravo has a long history of investing in and cultivating industry-leading software companies, and we are excited to bring together Archipelago Learning and PLATO Learning, two leaders in education technology,” said Holden Spaht, a partner at Thoma Bravo. “The acquisition of Archipelago will allow PLATO to offer a complete set of products and services to its customer base.”

The decision to enter into an agreement with Thoma Bravo’s PLATO Learning was the result of an extended evaluation of strategic alternatives by Archipelago Learning’s Board of Directors. As part of that review, the Board of Directors formed a Transaction Committee consisting of independent directors, and held discussions with a number of parties, including PLATO Learning, through a formal, competitive process. Further details of the transaction and background of the sale process will be included in the company’s preliminary proxy statement.
Barclays Capital acted as sole financial advisor and Weil Gotshal & Manges LLP acted as legal advisor to Archipelago Learning. Vinson & Elkins LLP also provided legal advice to the Transaction Committee and Board of Directors.

Archipelago Learning’s Board of Directors has unanimously approved the transaction and recommended that stockholders approve the merger agreement. In addition, Providence Equity Partners and select additional shareholders representing approximately 49 percent of the aggregate voting power of the company have entered into a voting agreement in support of the transaction.

“After a thorough review of the company’s strategic alternatives by our Board of Directors, we view the transaction as an excellent outcome for our shareholders, delivering an attractive premium relative to our current and historical trading levels as well as full cash liquidity,” stated Mr. McEwen.

Following the close of the transaction, the combined companies’ customer base will include over 50,000 schools and 17 million pre-K through adult students. The expanded and complementary product portfolio will provide schools and districts cost effective, results-based, end-to-end online learning solutions. These solutions include virtual instruction, credit recovery, intervention, test preparation, formative and diagnostic assessment, supplemental classroom instruction, college and career readiness, and developmental education.

Customers will continue to benefit from a large field sales, service and support organization that spans the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom, as well as dual operations centers in Bloomington, Minnesota and Dallas, Texas.

Kirkland & Ellis LLP acted as legal advisor to PLATO Learning and Thoma Bravo.

PLATO Learning has secured financing commitments from Credit Suisse and Jefferies Finance LLC.

The transaction is subject to customary closing conditions, including regulatory approvals and the approval of Archipelago Learning shareholders. A proxy statement with additional information is expected to be filed within approximately four weeks. As a result of the pending transaction, Archipelago Learning has cancelled its fourth quarter and fiscal year 2011 earnings conference call and webcast, which was scheduled for March 13, 2012, and will not be rescheduling this event.
